

The University of Tokyo launches PEAK

The University of Tokyo is preparing to launch its first undergraduate degree programs in English this coming October as PEAK (Programs in English at Komaba) and welcome about 30 students from more than 10 different countries as members of its first class.

The Application Guidelines for 2013 October admission are now available.

There are two different programs being offered - “Japan in East Asia” (East Asian Studies) and “Environmental Sciences”. Each course will be taught entirely in English providing the opportunity to learn the Japanese language.

Merit-based full scholarships for 4 years are available.

For details, please visit the PEAK website,
